Evaluate Your Implementation

Experiencing slowdowns in performance? It may be time to re-evaluate your implementation with a health check.

Organizational paradigms and requirements change significantly over time. Mergers, acquisitions, and internal changes force organizations to re-evaluate their high-performance software implementations — particularly enterprise-wide applications like Oracle Data Relationship Management (DRM).

If you are experiencing slowdowns in performance and/or are struggling to accommodate organizational growth, consider allowing our DRM experts to perform an evaluation of your current implementation. US-Analytics' personnel have been involved with DRM for over 12 years and have expertise across organizations of all types and sizes. With combined experience of over 60 years, our DRM consultants can get your DRM implementation where you need it to be.

What do you get with a DRM health check?

- An impartial “best practices” evaluation of your current DRM implementation with written results highlighting areas where improvements can be made
- A roadmap detailing where you are in terms of current technology and any benefits of moving to current release levels
- An analysis of your current organizational requirements versus the original implementation requirements, and a roadmap to bridge the deltas
- A readiness assessment if your organization is considering the addition of the Data Relationship Governance and the Data Relationship Management Analytics modules

What are the benefits to your organization?

- Identify and prioritize any significant issues
- Learn the actionable steps that will improve or enhance your DRM implementation
- Weigh the benefits of initiatives such as upgrading to current release levels and adding new modules, determining the best timeline for your organization
- Gain control over your technology and maximize the value of your software investment
